

Yearbook Plans Dollar Reduction For Underclassmen

James Burns, the editor of the 1962 "Evergreen Annual" announces that Fred Weinberg and Carroll Schempp, the yearbook business managers, will be accepting subscriptions for the 1963 edition in the Andrew White Center cafeteria each day beginning November 5 until November 16 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Past Yearbooks

In the past the yearbook has been only a senior publication. This year the staff plans to make an "Annual" that will give sufficient coverage to all the activities of the entire school.

Program Purposes

The purpose of this early drive is to offer an opportunity to save money on purchasing the 1963 edition. The total cost of the yearbook will be seven dollars for underclassmen, and ten dollars for seniors. However, by placing a deposit of one dollar only an additional five dollars will be charged, thus saving the students one dollar on the purchase of the book.

Last Year's Annual

The 1962 "Evergreen Annual" will arrive next Friday and be distributed in the cafeteria. Anyone who wishes to buy a copy of the book can obtain one for $7.00.

IRC Elects Dennis Keating District Chairman

Loyola College was one of thirty-seven schools represented at the recent Association of International Relations Clubs Mid-Atlantic Regional Conference which was held in Philadelphia from November 2 through November 4. The topic under discussion was The Common Market: Its Effects on the United States and Europe. The principal speaker at the conference was Stanley M. Cleveland of the Department of State.

Secretary Keating

Denny Keating, Secretary of the Loyola I.R.C., was elected Capitol District Chairman. This is an area embracing Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia.

This is the second consecutive year in which Loyola has been accorded this honor. The retiring Chairman of the District is Ed Slawski, President of the Loyola I.R.C.

With all indications pointing to the holding of the Regional Conference in Baltimore next year and the holding of the C.C.U.N. Model General Assembly in Washington, D.C. this spring, the Loyola I.R.C. should become increasingly prominent in these collegiate activities.

Eleventh Annual Military Ball Features Civilian Orchestra

On the evening of November 17, the Cadet Battalion of the Military Science Department of Loyola College will present the Eleventh Annual Military Ball in the gymnasium and cafeteria from 9 pm to 1 am. The theme of the ball is a military one with a variety of decorations, and the music will be provided by Morgan Baer, an eight piece civilian orchestra with a female vocalist, instead of a military band. Cadet Lt. Col. Donald Kalkman, the general chairman of the ball has announced that committees for the ball will be headed by the six company commanders. Heading the decoration committee is Lex Bishop, and John Zdenek will handle the tickets and publicity for the ball.

Intermission

Highlighting the dance will be a very brief intermission ceremony during which time the year's Queen will be named. This year's candidates are the six respective company queens who are: honorary cadet Captains Linda Pittman, Lois Zavadil, Kathy Hartman, Michele Moran, Kathy Purcell, and Susan Miskelly. During the intermission ceremony the queens of each company will distribute the favors to their respective companies.

Tickets and Corsages

The tickets for the affair are $5.00 per couple which includes both the favor and refreshment. The dress is formal and all students, even non-military, are invited to attend. There will be no additional charge for table reservations and corsages are discouraged.

The military ball has long been an outstanding event on campus. Besides being the only formal dance on campus, the ball provides an enjoyable evening for Loyola students and their dates.

Documentary Film To Be Presented On Peace Corps

Dr. Nicholas Varga has announced that on November 14 Roger Hamilton, a former Peace Corps Volunteer, will present a documentary film on the Peace Corps and describe its work in the student lounge of the Andrew White Center at 11 a.m.

Both he and his wife, whom he met in Peace Corps training at the University of California, were members of the first Peace Corps team to serve in Ghana. While there, they taught French, English, and History at a high school in a small village 250 miles from Accra, the Capital.

Harvard Grad

A native of Virginia, Mr. Hamilton was an honors graduate of Harvard University with a degree in History. All are invited to attend.

Alpha Sigma Nu Sponsors Lectures On Alcoholism

Alpha Sigma Nu is sponsoring three talks on the subject "The Use and Abuse of Alcohol." The first of these talks will be given by Father Joseph d'Invilliers, S.J. on Wednesday, November 14, at 11 a.m. in Xavier Lounge. Father d'Invilliers' talk will deal with the observance and violation of the virtue of sobriety in relation to moderate drinking, heavy drinking, alcoholism, and personal decisions with regard to the use of alcohol. Subsequent talks will be delivered on Wednesday, November 21 by Mr. Dixon Gibbs and on Wednesday, November 28, by the Director of the Baltimore Area Chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous. Mr. Gibbs' talk will deal with measures being taken by the State of Maryland to aid people with drinking problems and their families. The talk to be given by the Director of AA will explain what Alcoholics Anonymous is and how it works.

Problem Urgent

Father d'Invilliers stated that the problem of alcoholism is particularly urgent today in view of the following facts: 80 million Americans pay nine billion dollars a year for alcoholic beverages. There are approximately 6 million alcoholics in the United States. Among countries for which statistics are available, the United States ranks in second place for the number of alcoholics in proportion to its population. The foregoing are a mere sampling of facts about the use and abuse of alcoholic beverages. In view of these and other facts, the ASN, Jesuit College Students Honor Society, is sponsoring three talks.

Dr. Doris Boyle Announces Third Lecture Series

Dr. Doris Boyle, has announced that the Economics Colloquium started in 1961 will be continued this year. The purpose of the talks is to acquaint the student with specific problems. So give them the opportunity of meeting outstanding practitioners in specialized fields of work and to suggest future career opportunities. In the Economics Colloquium topics, guest lecturer, place and time of meeting will be announced in the Student Union Building each week by the office of the Dean of Men.

Last Monday, Mr. Stanley Mazer, a trained social worker and community planning specialist, spoke to the Colloquium on the social problem which exists in Baltimore.

Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Editorial

Honor Off

Recently, there has been a great deal of talk on campus about the feasibility of establishing an honor system at Loyola. The discussion is not a new one and has been discussed by both students and faculty members for many years. However, current exponents of the idea of honor systems claim to be different from those who have proposed an honor system in the past.

According to one of the current adherents to the idea of honor systems, the new program will take a positive and not a negative approach to the meaning of honor. In his words: "The honor system which we will attempt to put into effect does not find its origin in a problem of cheating at Loyola. Instead, our plan grows out of the wish of a few students to promote the ideals and interests of Loyola."

Of course, those who support the initiation of the honor system to the college do admit that there are several problems facing them. First, there is the problem of convincing the average student that he can, in all justice, report a friend whom he has seen cheating. Second, there have been many difficulties, such as the petty jealousies which prompt men to inform on innocent people, which have grown out of such programs at other schools. Finally, there will be organizational difficulties which will be inherent in the planning of such a system.

Whether an honor system is necessary at Loyola and whether or not it can ever be made to work in the near future remains to be seen. Therefore, the editorial board of The Greyhound would not care to comment on the feasibility of such a plan until more information is available. We are interested, however, in determining the opinion of the students of Loyola on an honor system. Your letters will be welcomed.

Alpha Sigma Nu's

Since the vast majority of Loyola students are from the Baltimore area, and since most of these students remain and work in this area, the role of Loyola graduates in metropolitan affairs serves as a clear indicator of the importance of the college to the community. In this column we deal with graduates of Loyola who are prominent in public office.

The first name to come to mind is, naturally, that of J. Harold Grady, the mayor of Baltimore. Mayor Grady was a member of the graduating class of 1938. The present States Attorney for Baltimore city is also a graduate of Loyola. William J. O'Donnell finished his course of study here in 1937. Francis X. Gallagher, who served several terms in the House of Delegates and who is now the Peoples Counsel for the Metropolitan Transit Authority, is a member of the class of '49. One of Loyola's best known basketball stars, James J. Lacy, Jr., is now serving as President of the City Fire Board. Francis Burch, the City Solicitor, graduated from Loyola in 1941. The chairman of the Off Street Parking Commission, Thomas J. Kenney, belongs to the class of 1932.

Many Loyola graduates have served as judges. Judge Anselm Sodaro, a member of the Supreme Bench, graduated from Loyola in 1931, the same year that Judge Joseph Finnerty graduated. But, space does not permit us to list all the graduates of Loyola who are now prominent in public office. For further information, consult your daily papers.

COMMENT

While the eyes of the world were watching Cuba, another incident on the other side of the world was occurring which vied in importance with the Castro escapade. In the exotic land of the Buddhist, a momentous decision was reached. This decision was to request arms from the Western powers. These powers promptly responded. They were glad to aid a nation who has formerly given them the cold shoulder. The nation was India; the incident, the Chinese invasion of its borders.

Ever since the days of Ghandi the most aggressive foreign policy that India has pursued has been one of passive resistance. Their position of strict neutrality has been an example to many newly-emerging nations. They have accepted aid and brought goods from whichever camp offered the best deal. No doubt, their dealing with Russia was not only motivated by economic reasons, but also because of an understanding that Moscow would keep Peiping's expansion in check.

Moscow vs. Peiping

The "soft line" that Khrushchev followed in Cuba probably laid him open to much criticism, especially his Eastern neighbor. Yielding to their demands, he allowed the invasion of India's northern borders. This invasion brought the pillars of neutrality crumbling about Nehru's burning ears.

China vs. India

China climaxed years of infiltration with open hostilities. The ill-equipped Indian forces were no match for the invaders. Defense Minister Krishna Menon was quickly replaced and Nehru asked for arms from the United States and her allies. They were swift in replying.

The Big Thaw

Winter will soon end the conflict. Not until spring will the final outcome be known. At that time India will have to definitely re-examine its position.

Alumni Notes

This article begins a new series dealing with Loyola alumni and their sons who are now enrolled at Loyola College.

Our first distinguished alumnus is Bish Baker. Bish, a graduate of the class of 1941, received his Ph.D. after distinguishing himself in four years of athletics here at Loyola. He was a star lacrosse player and in his first two years played on the ice hockey team.

After graduation, Bish returned to Loyola in 1946 as assistant soccer coach and swimming and lacrosse coach. In his tenure as soccer coach he had a Mason-Dixon championship team in 1948. Also, he coached the 1948-49 Junior Basketball team which was conference champion. In all, Bish was, at one time or another, coach of the soccer, wrestling, lacrosse, swimming, Basketball, and cross-country teams.

Now Bish's son, Bish, Jr. or better known as "Spider" has come to Loyola to follow in his father's footsteps. Spider is a sophomore political science major who was a mainstay of our excellent wrestling team last season.

Club Heads

The purpose of this college is to educate the whole man. Part of this education necessarily involves the ability to express oneself verbally, an ability which cannot be fully developed in the classroom. The most effective means is by the actual experience of speaking before an audience. It is for this reason that there is a Debating Society at Loyola.

Debating at the collegiate level provides an excellent opportunity to apply knowledge acquired in the classroom to practical, present-day problems. As the debators' knowledge increases, so does his ability to utilize, to unify, and to express this knowledge. Throughout the year teams are sent to various colleges and universities including Georgetown, Maryland, the Naval Academy, Fordham, and many others. Seeing other schools exchanging ideas with their students is a stimulating and worthwhile experience. The art of debating comes only with experience. A college education cannot be considered complete without it. Those interested are urged to join this activity as early as possible in their scholastic careers, but it is never too late to begin. Only a year's experience can be of immense value. Under their moderator, Mr. James Purott, not only debating but also remedial instruction will be available. Those who are sincerely concerned for their future success should give serious consideration to joining the Debating Society.

The Skeptic Tank

I've found out how to survive in this tank. Hide the Dranol. So, if the drains get clogged and can't empty, I'm safe.

Ron Yakaitis says that for me to be really safe, I ought to keep any people who cheer at rodeos away from the drains. After all, he says, they are rodeo-rooters...

This week, I have found a Dramatic Society special: for those who missed the cast party, we have an L.P. of Willy (the Pope) Hoffman with the dry heavens.

Notice who has been making up your tests lately? Some guy named Suesse Fujiyama. As Mr. Voci would say, "I wishe the makere of those teste woulde take his leve."

Someone said that if I ever become skeptical over food, I'd be a kitchen cynic.

Special Report

The Dave Chaffon Story

Who is the pint-sized cassanova from Severna Park who has taken over Loyola's campus? Anyone who has visited the Student-Union building in the last few weeks can answer that Loyola's claim to fame is "Young Dave" Chaffon. King Dave, the drugstore cowboy of Dawson's Corner, is the duly-elected president and supreme-high-potestate of the Young Dave Fan Club.

King of Things

This organization, founded by the admirers of Young Dave, is the up and coming prestige group on Campus. It's the next best thing to a fraternity and the word is that pretty soon it will be chartered. A charter member will be entitled to all the privileges and sacred rites of the sect (whatever that means). Members of the society greet with a sig-heel sort of thing, wearing at all times their "I love Dave" big name buttons. Annually (so the charter reads) a meeting of the highest fig leaves (the gang) is called by the exalted ruler (Dave himself) to discuss plans for the Annual Young Dave Zebra Roast at which fried chicken is the main and only dish. But enough of the club and more about the leader.

Small Fry

Our man Dave is one of the members of the philosophy seminar on campus. He has made such a name for himself in philosophy, that Father d'Inwilliers is relying on Dave to help some of the slower, less advanced students. It is rumored that Fr. Conlin has his eye on Dave and will keep it there in the future (for obvious reasons). So with everybody keeping their eye on Dave, we suggest that you keep your eye on Dave, 'cause he's so small you'll miss him if you don't.

Young Dave greets his group of admirers "The Idlers of the King."

It is hoped that many of you will attend the performances given by the Baltimore Civic Opera Company this season. Der Rosenkavalier is the opera with which they plan to open. They have sent to our Music Club a record containing excerpts and a libretto from this opera. Perhaps some of you will wish to hear this particular Strauss work would like to become more familiar with it. If a number of students would like to have a discussion or lecture given on this opera, they should see John Ryan or Walter Miles; some arrangements will be made. The Music Club is anxious to have anyone interested in understanding more about music to make his sentiments known. Many members of the club are willing to take time to answer questions and to provide listening--commenting sessions during which our musical knowledge can be broadened. Der Rosenkavalier is a standard in the repertory of great operas. Listen to it!

Booters Continue Streak, Win Consecutive Shutouts

The Greyhound Soccer Squad rolled to its ninth and tenth straight victories last week with a 1-0 decision over Randolph-Macon College and a 3-0 win over Washington College. In the Randolph-Macon game, Jorge Ordonez found himself in perfect position to boot in a rebound shot at the eighteen minute mark of the first quarter to account for the only score in the game. The Hound defense played a HOOP-LA: A hard working Hound cage squad gets set for its first public appearance tonight.

Cage Notes

Tonight the Greyhound cagers travel up to the University of Delaware for their first outside scrimmage. If you will remember, these same Blue Hens of Delaware were heavy favorites to cop Loyola's Invitational Basketball Tournament. However, the Hens were knocked off by an upstart Muhlenburg team in the opening round and had to settle for third place.

Information Sought

Coach Nap Doherty will be seeking information about the strength of this season's cage squad in this initial scrimmage. Delaware should provide a good test for both the Hounds offensive and defensive capabilities.

Offensive improvement is especially evident in individuals as well as the squad as a whole. Notably Pat Flynn, Mike McCarthy and Bill Carew have added a number of shots and moves to their bags of tricks. If these three can add some points to the already proven consistent point production of Don Wallenhorst, Marty Maher and Charley O'Donnell, the Hound point totals should show an upward trend this year.

Frosh Cagers

Loyola's frosh basketballers are well into their pre-season intrasquad combat. Coach Nap Doherty has had his hands full drilling his younger cagers in the evening hours after varsity practice. Local boys making bids for starting berths include Bill Grewe, Tom Brown, Tom Ruane, Jerry Frome, and Larry Stevenson. Out-of-townners striving for berths include Charley Lawrence from Mahoney City, Pa., Bob Lister from Westminster's St. John's High School, and Mickey O'Brien from LaSalle High School in Philadelphia.

fine game in holding their host's attack scoreless. The Loyola offense was more productive than the score would indicate. Many shots just missed going into the nets.

Hounds Down Shoremen

Last Monday, the booters topped Washington College 3-0 as Jack Palmer, Denny Palmer and Denny Grabowski accounted for the goals. Grabowski's score was his sixteenth of the season, tops in the league. Jack Palmer registered his sixth.

B.U. Loses

The Hounds got some unexpected good news last weekend when they learned that Catholic U. defeated B.U. by a 3-1 margin. The loss was the first in league play for the Bees, Loyola's chief rival to the Mason-Dixon title.

By today, Northern and Southern winners of the M-D Conference should have been decided. Northern and southern winners will play for the Conference title. If it's the Hounds vs. Lynchburg, Loyola should be favored in view of its victory over Lynchburg earlier in the season. Why don't you go out and watch the new champs in action. You'll enjoy it.

Loyola Tourney To Be Staged Here Tomorrow

The Fifth Annual Loyola College Invitational Cross Country Meet will be held tomorrow, at 2 p.m. on the Evergreen Campus. The contest promises to be the best ever. Galaudet, the defending 1961 champion, will have a real battle in turning back Mt. St. Mary's and Towson State. Towson is the surprise of the Conference and should be an extremely strong contender.

Towson's only loss was a squeaker to Mt. St. Mary's but on the shorter Loyola course the Teachers should be hard to beat. However, the Mounties, who are undefeated in M-D circles, must be reckoned with as well as American U.'s Eagles. In the overall picture though, Towson, led by its undefeated Freshman flash Jeff Glover, looms as the favorite.

Hounds Victories

Last week, the Hound Harriers brought their record to 2-3 by a 21-36 triumph over Washington College. Loyola's Denny Voith and Bill Jenkins finished first and second to pace the win. All of the Hounds finished in the top ten runners in a good team effort. Tom Kenney placed fifth, Mike Kenney and Bill May were sixth and seventh and Pat Strow copped the ninth position. It was a fine team effort for the undermanned harriers.

"Zeke" Zdenek scampers around Jody Satterfield to pick up some handy yardage in an intramural game next week.

Intramurals

Two games were played in the Intramural Football League last week. When the smoke had cleared, the Hamilton Rek and the Flores had emerged with victories. The stand-out of the Rek victory was Rel Van Daniker. Rel accounted for both scores in the Rek 12-0 win, one on a pass to Rusinko and the other on a runback of an intercepted pass. The key to the Rek triumph, however, was the fine play of their big line spearheaded by Satterfield, Lutz, and Schaefer.

In the other game the Flores crushed the Yo Yo's by a 27-0 count. Quarterback Joe Kernan was the big gun for the Flores. Joe fired three scoring strikes, one each to Smith, McGinnis, and Norton. The Flores' other touchdown came on a runback of an intercepted pass by Smith. The Flores also notched three extra points in the contest. They were registered by Dersh, Lambdin, and Smith.

Four Left

There are now four teams left in Intramural League play. They are the Debits, Flores, Hamilton Rek, and the 1.5's. The only undefeated squad is The Debits, a senior team. Judging from performances so far, the Debits should be rated as the favorites to cop the crown. Next week's action will tell the story of who cops the title.

Swim Workouts In Full Swing

Junior Tom Jeffers is setting the pace in the distance races in practice as the tank team got down to serious workouts this week. New men who show promise at this point are freestylers George Harker, Dick Morgan, Dick Schiminger, and Joe Colly, breaststrokers Mack Hanley, Charles Krapp and Ed Moritz, divers Paul Robertson, Paul Palmieri and Dan Cunningham and backstroker Harry Devlin.

Coach Klarner reports that the team is still looking for a fast freestyler for the 50 yard dash, an event in which the Hounds scored few points last season.

The squad is now down to twenty-eight men and will be trimmed down even further to about twenty members before the opening meet of the season which is scheduled with Shepherd College on December 4th.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

by Phil Pierpont

As everyone probably knows by now, on the nights of December 28, and 29, the second annual Loyola Invitational Basketball Tournament will be held. The tourney promises to be a top-flight basketball attraction for several reasons. First of all, the Hound team should be one of the strongest members of the strong Mason-Dixon Conference. The high calibre of Mason-Dixon play is attested to by the fact that Mt. St. Mary's, one of the conference's member schools, won the NCAA small college cage tournament last year.

Another reason for the appeal of the Tournament is the high quality of the visiting teams: Ohio Wesleyan, West Chester, and Lafayette. These three teams last season posted an impressive aggregate record of fifty-one wins against eighteen losses.

The tickets for the tournament are priced at $1.00 per night for students. Considering price, calibre of competition, and convenience of locale, what better holiday sports attraction could anyone at Loyola ask? Still, at last year's tourney, a ridiculously low total of ninety students were in attendance. It should not be too big an order to surpass that total in the first week of ticket sales.

Tickets Ready

Basketball season tickets are now available at the athletic office, situated just inside of the front entrance of the gymnasium. These tickets are available free of charge to all Loyola day school students. A book of season tickets admits the holder to all Loyola home basketball contests with the exception of the Invitational Tournament. The procedure for obtaining season tickets is simply to go to the athletic office and present one's green registration card.

Tournament Tickets

Tickets for the Invitational Tournament are also on sale at the Athletic Office. Student tickets cost $1.00 per night. All seats are reserved so the earlier tickets are obtained, the better the seats.

TWO TEACHER TRACKSTERS: Jeff Glovers and John Murphy have been outstanding for Towson this year.
